KING'S QUEST

The first volume in an epic series

THE FLOATING CASTLE

CRAIG MILLS

Daventry has known peace for a long time. Until now...

A flying castle?

It can't be true—but it is. The most vicious storm in years rages through a dark night, and dawn finds mankind shining on an ominous black castle where there was none the day before. The next few days see chaos in all of Evil like Daventry has never known: ghastly rulers in black armor pillaging farms, horrid trolls and ogres laying waste to the countryside, monstrous flashes of lightning hovering over the castle.

King Graham assembles his greatest knights in council to determine how to deal with this threat. As they bicker over a solution, a dark-robed mage—a rare sight here—arrives, announcing himself as Edgarin, master of the Dark Tower, king of Daventry. As a "favor" to them, he will tolerate their squabbling, he steals Graham's soul, leaving a lifeless body slumped over in his throne.

Prince Alexander cannot sit still. His kingdom is wounded, his people are terrified, and his father is near death. Accompanied only by an aging retainer, he sets out to banish the evil that has befallen all he holds dear. But to do so, he will have to journey to the very heart of evil itself...
